

Lower 6 historians use Playmobil to re-enact key Civil War scenes!

The Lower 6 historians have nearly finished the AS part of their course and have learned about the causes of the English Revolution 1625-42. There are several key turning points just before war broke out, one of them being the execution of the Earl of Strafford in May 1641: in order to learn about this, we decided to get creative and the students made a mini-video using Playmobil figures to explain the execution and its consequences. Here they are planning out their video, scene by scene!
