

International Day

Friday was the day that the world came to Gateways!

It may have taken Phileas Fogg eighty days to journey around the world but he was put firmly into his place as the children accomplished the same in just under seven hours. Vibrantly dressed and eagerly clutching their passports, the children were dazzled by the wonders of six continents.

They learned about the flora, faunae, customs, crafts, foods, music and dances our world has to offer, from the savannahs of South Africa to the Icelandic tundra, from the scorched red of the American deserts to the gardens of Japan.

Whilst the children remained united in their refusal to eat stuffed vine leaves (sorry Greece!) a fantastic day was had by all and many children will doubtless have had their interest sparked in what lays beyond the horizon, inspired to throw a loaf of bread and a pound of tea into an old satchel and leap over the back fence.
