

An Eggciting Eggperiment for Pre-Reception, Reception and Transition!

Just before half term, Pre-Reception, Reception and Transition were set an eggstraordinary task – to save Humpty Dumpty from a nasty fall!

The competition was to make the best egg protector to prevent an egg from breaking when it was dropped from a height.

So many children chose to take part in the competition and we had numerous, truly fantastic, designs and last Friday, conditions were perfect to test the designs.

One at a time, our eggs were dropped from an eggstreme height. The eggs were so well protected that only a few Humpty Dumptys actually came to a sticky end! Because so many survived a fall of over 2 meters (WOW!), the eventual winners were chosen based on their designs!

We had 3 winners overall, congratulations to Elsie in Pre-Reception, Nico from Reception and Wilfred from Transition who were chosen for their safe and beautiful Humpty Dumpty protection contraptions.

Everyone worked so hard on their designs and the standard of protection was huge. A big well done to all!
