

London landmarks in Lower 3

In humanities this term we are learning about London. As an introduction to the delights of the capital, the children used topic books and the internet to research a London landmark, identifying key information and organising it into an informative poster.

They then made models of their chosen chunk of (almost certainly over-priced compared to if it was in a sensible place) real estate with some excellent and innovative results. Were he not long-dead, Christopher Wren would be shaking in his lavishly-buckled shoes.

Represented were Buckingham Palace, Leicester Square, 10 Downing Street, the Science Museum, the London Eye, the Palace of Westminster, Big Ben and Westminster Abbey. All of these, we can now confirm, would look better made from multi-coloured bricks!

It was great to see the children working with initiative, independence and creativity to learn about some of the places we will see in the Summer term.
