

Lower 3's timeline tussle

In humanities, Lower 3 are learning about the history and geography of London. In order to get a grasp of the full span of the history of the capital, the children got active, working together as classes to be the first to complete jumbo-sized timelines.

Two thousand years of highs and lows, triumphs and disasters and everything in between were discussed and ordered with efficiency and teamwork, with the race building to an unexpectedly tense conclusion.

Lower 3W took the laurels but Lower 3PH were only seconds behind. We were very impressed with the enthusiasm and focus of all the children and it was clear that they embraced the opportunity provided by the task to expand their knowledge and practise their skills in a fun (albeit windy) environment.
