

Ducklings in Transition!

This week, Transition have had some eggciting visitors to the classroom – 5 duck eggs!

As soon as the eggs arrived, one eager duckling started to hatch, with 2 others joining it by Thursday afternoon.

Sadly, the other 2 eggs were not viable and did not hatch at all, but the children learnt that this happens sometimes in nature and understood that we had given them the best chance we could to hatch.

Our three feathered arrivals have made themselves known in the classroom – they are quite noisy! We have loved watching their cheeky antics and have even given them a bath!

All the visitors to the classroom have thought of names for the ducklings and in the end Quackers, David and Bob were picked out of the hat! We know that Quackers is the yellow one, Bob has a wobbly foot and David is brown!

We have them for the rest of the week and will be sharing them with the rest of Prep – we want everyone to enjoy them!
