

Upper6 sociology students start their crime and deviance module

Our Upper 6 sociology group have made a strong start to their Crime and Deviance unit. We started by thinking about how we define the seriousness of different crimes, trying to rank a list of crimes to decide which are the biggest and smallest crimes in our society. They agreed on some, with murder, war crimes and genocide at the top. Other crimes produced some interesting discussion. Pollution, fraud and lying proved difficult to categorise. These conversations will help pupils as they start to learn about corporate and environmental crime. It will be interesting to see if their rank order will be the same by the end of the course!
