

Odd Socks Day

We all wore odd socks to school on Tuesday in support of Anti-Bullying Week. Pictured above are Transition showing off their odd socks!

Odd Socks Day celebrates individuality and diversity and is a fun way to raise awareness about the importance of accepting each other for who we are. This ties in beautifully with our new PSHE topic for this half term, Celebrating Difference. Mr Arnold and Mr Chandler introduced this important topic with a lovely assembly at the start of last week.

We also held an odd socks decorating competition, and I was absolutely blown away by the amazing entries! Take a look at some of them below...we will be deciding the winners over the weekend!
