

Lower 4 investigate disorders of the respiratory system

As part of their study of breathing and respiration Lower 4 researched disorders of the respiratory system. Each team chose a different disorder to investigate. They employed a range of research skills to identify reliable sources of information and extract the relevant points. Each group developed their ability to plan and negotiate as they worked out how to present their findings and divide the tasks between their members. Everyone worked hard to present everything they had found in an attractive poster.

Great determination, attention to detail and teamwork was shown by all.
